A team of University of Cincinnati graduate business students topped the Association for Corporate Growth's annual ACG Cincinnati Cup competition on Wednesday.

It was second consecutive win for UC, said Crystal Faulkner, a partner with Cooney Faulkner & Stevens, who was one of the judges. The team from Miami University was the runner-up.

Along with UC and Miami, student teams from Xavier University, Northern Kentucky University and the University of Dayton analyzed a merger or acquisition case study, prepared recommendations and presented them to a panel of "investor" judges, who chose the winner.

Each school held an intramural competition and sent its winning team to the final round, which took place at the Kingsgate Marriott on the UC campus.

The winning team received $4,000 in scholarship money, with prizes of $3,000, $2,000, $1,000 and $500 for the second-though fifth-place teams.

This year's challenge was presented by Northwestern Mutual-Kelly Financial Group Inc. and the Cincinnati ACG chapter.

The Association for Corporate Growth is an international organization for people involved with corporate growth, corporate development and mergers and acquisitions.
